

CONCLUSIONS

I INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE OF WOMEN IN FISHERIES

WORKSHOP 6: BLUE GROWTH AND SUSTAINABILITY

The importance of international cooperation by means of international bodies such as the FAO and countries themselves must be highlighted for the promotion of blue growth in developing countries.

Blue growth is the driver of employment and diversification. It would be advisable to take advantage of the opportunities that circular economy offers to women in the fishing sector.

The fishing sector is not the problem of the waste in the marine environment, rather it is part of the solution to collect and later recycle this.

Within the European Union there are means of financing within the framework of the European Maritime and Fisheries Fund that should be used by women in fishing. (The PLEAMAR programme in Spain, for example).